ACCESS ARRANGEMENTS POLICY 2019-2020

Access arrangements allow students with special educational needs and or disabilities (SEND), additional learning needs (ALN) or temporary injuries to access an assessment. Access arrangements are agreed before an assessment. They allow students to demonstrate their skills, knowledge and understanding without changing the demands of the assessment. The intention behind access arrangements is to meet the particular needs of a candidate without affecting the integrity of the assessment. Access arrangements are the principal way in which awarding bodies comply with the duty under the Equality Act 2010 to make 'reasonable adjustments'. The aim of access arrangements is to remove disadvantage, never give an advantage.

All access arrangements are arranged following the guidelines of the examination bodies (JCQ for GCSEs and Cambridge/Pearson for iGCSEs). We follow these guidelines for students taking internal as well as external exams, for example 11+, end of year tests, internal assessments and mocks.

The College aims to ensure that all students have equal access to examinations and are neither advantaged nor disadvantaged over their peers by any long term, substantial SEND/or ALN which fall into the following four categories:

1. Communication and interaction
2. Cognition and learning
3. Social, emotional and mental health
4. Sensory and/or physical needs

We will do this by applying the rules for Access Arrangements as set out in the most recent Joint Council for Qualifications (JCQ guidelines 1/09/2019) and the guidelines issue by Cambridge and Pearson for iGCSEs. We believe it is important to abide by the boards' regulations, so that there is parity in how access arrangements are awarded throughout a student's secondary schooling. For every exam concession, five conditions have to be met (please see below) and evidence must be gathered from the classroom to back the application. This will paint a 'picture of need'.

We will use every opportunity to identify students' needs from their first contact with the College. Professional reports can be submitted to request access arrangements for 11+ and First to Third Years, but these are usually no longer accepted by the boards for GCSEs, iGCSEs or A Levels. Access arrangements reflect the support that is usually given to the student in the classroom, internal exams and mock examinations. This is commonly referred to as 'normal way of working'.

The decision to apply for access arrangements is the College's, based on evidence of a history of need, current need, history of provision, a student being disadvantaged compared to his/her peers and a specialist teacher's access arrangements report or medical report from a specialist doctor. Subject teachers are also involved in the decision as to whether an exam concession is necessary; this is in line with the regulations mentioned above.

Use of a laptop

The use of a laptop in exams reflects the student's normal way of working at the College and has been agreed as appropriate to the student's needs. The use of a laptop cannot be granted to a student simply because this is their preferred way of working. As with every other exam concession, the provision to use a laptop is put in place to address an underlying difficulty such as speed of handwriting, medical condition, physical disability, sensory impairment, planning and organisational difficulties or poor legibility. The spellcheck and punctuation and grammar check will be turned off in line with JCQ advice.

Rest Breaks/Separate Room

The exam concessions of rest breaks can be awarded to students, in line with the advice above. Rest breaks are a suitable concession for a student with a medical condition, this can include mental health. A signed specialist doctor's report or letter would be required to award a concession of rest breaks, this must be on headed paper. A GP's letter would not be sufficient. A student can take exams in a separate room (not necessarily alone but in a smaller room than the main hall) but this has to be backed up by evidence that the five conditions are being met (please see below).

25% extra time

25% extra time is an exam concession that can be granted for learning needs or medical reasons. For learning needs, this would have to be one speed of working test score below standard score 85 or two low average test scores, between 85 and 89. In both cases, additional evidence would be supplied by the teachers, as mentioned above, however in the case of two low average scores a larger body of evidence would be required. Results of memory tests can be submitted. Please be aware that external reports are no longer accepted by the examination boards.

An application for 25% extra time can be made for medical reasons, however, it is often difficult to prove that a medical condition is causing the student to work more slowly (requiring 25% extra time) and so rest breaks are often considered a more appropriate concession. Please see the section on rest breaks above.

Prompter

For students who lack focus and/or concentration, the access arrangement of prompter may be available. This is sometimes suitable for students with ADHD. As with all access arrangements, classroom based evidence is required.

Other access arrangements

There are other access arrangements available which are less widely used, please refer to the guidelines issued by the boards or speak to the Academic Support Teacher.

Five Conditions

1. The candidate continues to have persistent-significant difficulties and is disabled within the meaning of the Equality Act 2010.
2. Evidence of current difficulties and how they substantially impact on teaching/learning in the classroom.
3. Show the involvement of teaching staff in determining the need.
4. Confirm that without the arrangement the candidate would be at a substantial disadvantage when compared with non-disabled candidates.
5. The arrangement continues to be the candidate's normal way of working as a direct consequence of their disability.
6. The candidate is not competent in using a laptop (for the exam concession of scribe/voice activated software).

Special Consideration

Please note that access arrangements and special consideration are separate and distinct. Special consideration can be requested on the day as an emergency measure, for example an emergency at home such as a fire, a sudden bereavement or a medical emergency. It cannot be considered for minor or trivial reasons such as coughs and colds, minor noise outside the hall or long standing illnesses.

Schedule

Below is a rough guide to timings for making application for access arrangements. This can vary from case to case.

Lower Sixth	Academic Support Teacher.	12-15 weeks for gathering of evidence, for students who had access arrangements previously at St George's College, there is no need to retest. Sixth Form

All access arrangements have to be considered anew for Sixth Form. Although it will be taken into consideration that a student had an access arrangement for GCSEs/iGCSEs, that does not automatically mean that these will be put in place for A Levels.

Gathering of evidence/History of need

The JCQ and Cambridge requirements are that evidence should be gathered over a period of years (not months) for access arrangements. The need should be apparent for a substantial period of time.

Please be aware that if a concern is not raised at GCSE level, it is very difficult to prove retrospectively that there was a need during that time.
